

Explosives Recognition and IED Awareness

Training is provided by Law Enforcement - Government Advisors and Temple College Police Department is hosting the training.

June 9, 2015

On June 9, 2015, Law Enforcement - Government Advisors will provide training in explosives recognition and IED awareness. IEDs are a significant and deadly threat faced by law enforcement, first responders, and government offices in the current trends of violent criminals and terrorism. The course will include Basic Explosives, Introduction to IEDs, Vehicle Borne IEDs, Safety, Letter Bombs, Juvenile Exploding Devices, and Suspicious Items.

This course will be instructed by Bill Spruce, the former Deputy Director of the FBI Terrorist Explosive Device Analytical Center, which is located at the FBI Laboratory, Quantico, VA.

One hour of study material will be provided in advance of class to introduce glossary of terms, precursors for explosives, signs of a vehicle borne IED, suspicious package indicators, and a list of foreign terrorist organizations.

TCOLE Course #21004 - Explosives Recognition and IED Awareness. This course is designated as an eight (8) hours law enforcement explosives proficiency training course. The training coordinator for Temple College PD will submit the names on the training roster to TCOLE. In order to receive credit, each participant must provide their TCOLE PID number at registration and pass a written test.

Note: An agency chief administrator or their designated official is responsible for making any and all reports to TCOLE. LE-GOV has no control over the reporting of this training to TCOLE and reporting is at the discretion of the agency chief administrator or their designated official.
