Background

Background

The Regional Public Transportation Coordination Plan (RPTCP), formerly known as the Regionally Coordinated Transportation Plan (RCTP) is a planning document mandated by the Federal Transit Administration (FTA) and the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT). It must be updated every five years, and this current update covers Fiscal Years 2027–2031 (FY27–31).

The RPTCP serves as both a blueprint and a toolbox for improving coordination and development of public transportation services across the region. It guides the implementation of new and expanded efforts that generate efficiencies, which are then leveraged to enhance existing services or introduce new ones that increase access for transit-dependent populations, including rural residents, seniors, individuals with disabilities, low-income residents, zero-car households, youths, individuals with limited English proficiency, Veterans, clients of workforce agencies, and job seekers.

TxDOT Region 23 encompasses a nine-county area in Central Texas: Bell, Coryell, Hamilton, Lampasas, Llano, Mason, Milam, Mills, and San Saba. The Central Texas Council of Governments (CTCOG) facilitates planning and coordination efforts within this region. However, Mason and Llano counties are not part of the CTCOG planning area and are therefore excluded from this study.

This update builds upon the foundation laid in the previous planning cycle and continues to prioritize collaborative efforts, drawing from public feedback, stakeholder input, and coordination with Hill Country Transit District (HCTD) and Central Texas Rural Transit District (CTRTD) to strengthen regional transportation planning and improve access.
