

ACTIVE THREATS

Active threat calls have become numbingly common over the last decade, regardless of community size. This course will help dispatchers, call takers, supervisors, and those who support prepare to work against these threats - full-scale active shooters, cases of vehicle ramming, or cutting attacks. The internationally recognized 6-step pathway to active assailant violence and the rapid response, rapid deployment response model will be taught. Also covered will be mechanisms to detract from vehicle ramming and the reason that assailants are increasing the use of cutting instruments..
